Stephen Michael Conroy (born 18 January 1963 in Ely, Cambridgeshire, England, near Norwich) is an Australian politician and the current Minister for Broadband, Communications and the Digital Economy in the Rudd Labor Government. He has been an Australian Labor Party member of the Australian Senate since May 1996, representing the state of Victoria. He's the big mouth of Broadband and Communications in Australia - The uneducated idiot that plans to filter all internet content at an ISP level for end users. The rightful owner will have full use of Mr Conroy - As you see fit. (Although It is recommended only bringing him out for sexual pleasure at parties.) He has failed the Australian Government as Minister for Broadband, Communications and the Digital Economy. The asking price is around $8'000, or best offer. but send me your thoughts, No reasonable offer refused. He will be delivered via FedEx Courier Service to your doorstep where you can do with him as you wish. More Images are available via email on request - Including Noooooodes. Signed, K Rudd.
